

Jesus Outside the Lines—Conversation Starters

1. Have Christians lost the ability to speak persuasively and credibly to the culture?
2. Can (or should) Christians seek to learn from people who don't believe as they do?
3. Do Christians offer anything of value for people who don't believe as they do?
4. When Christians enter discussion about heated issues, does it make things better or worse?
5. Is it possible to profoundly disagree with someone and be friends with her or him at the same time?
6. Does being a Christian require alignment with a certain political party?
7. Can the rights of an unborn child and the rights of the child's mother be protected at the same time?
8. Why are younger generations giving up on the organized church, and should they?
9. Should those who have money enjoy it or give it away?
10. Is it possible to believe in an infinitely loving God who also punishes eternally?
11. Should people dismiss Christianity because so many Christians are hypocrites?
12. Can a person affirm same-sex relationships and follow Jesus at the same time?
13. Are Christianity and intelligence incompatible?
