

6 Romantic Story Moments to Borrow for Valentine's Day

Novelist Candace Calvert is known for her heart-pounding medical romance; labeled by many as 'medical hope operas', Candace offers readers a chance to scrub with each of her books.

If you're in need of a date night idea this Valentine's Day, look no further. Below, find a few fictional, but very fun, examples of ways Candace's characters have been swept off their feet!

Slip Into Your Dancing Shoes: A great date for... the dancer!

Inviting your significant other dancing is a great way for both of you to get your hearts pumping and to see each other's "fun side." Whether you are good dancers or not, you are all but guaranteed physical closeness and a fond memory. (Claire & Logan, Critical Care)

Belt Out a Karaoke Duet: A great date for... the musician!

Whether you have perfect pitch or sing solely in the shower, karaoke will certainly shake things up. Getting out of your comfort zone with a date is the perfect way to get to know them. If nothing else, it'll be a great night filled with laughter. (Erin & Scott, Disaster Status)

Play Tourist in Your Own City: A great date for... the world traveler!

Invite your date out to experience your town as a local! Explore and take in the sights of your own hometown. This is a great chance to share not only your favorite hidden gems but also discover new ones as you each share what it is you love most about your city. (Leigh & Nick, Code Triage)

Peruse Local Food Trucks: A great date for... putting a twist on a classic!

Take your dinner date up one notch and visit the local food truck scene in your neighborhood. One of the advantages to this low-key meal option is the ability to take your food and walk around. Find your favorite local spot and have a picnic! (Kate & Wes, Rescue Team)

Let Him be the Chef: A great date for... the chef!

What can be more romantic than enjoying a meal cooked with care by your date? This is a great opportunity to let his culinary skills shine! (Lauren & Eli, Life Support)

Have a Picnic in Your Car: A great date for... bad weather!

Grab your favorite take out and drive to the top of anywhere with a great view! This date allows you to enjoy a meal and truly get to know your date while you share your favorite picnic spot. As an added bonus, this date is weather-proof! (Sloane & Micah, Maybe It's You)

I hope you're inspired to design your own romantic adventure; parachutes, food trucks, and hiking boots not required. A bit of imagination and a generous splash of humor goes a long way!

For more information and to read the first chapters of all these romantic, adventurous, and hopeful stories, please visit candacecalvert.com